Touching Lives

Individual and Family Consultations

Given the challenges of caregiving for people with dementia, individuals and families often elect to work with a dementia specialist to develop a care management plan. Having a proactive care plan in place that changes as the disease progresses is essential for maintaining the highest quality of life for all involved.

A skilled dementia specialist can anticipate the changing needs of the caregiver and the care recipient, provide guidance and support on how to best manage the disease progression for all involved, and connect families to the vast number of community resources available to provide support throughout the journey ahead. This brings optimal support to caregivers allowing them to better care for their loved ones and keep them at home for a longer period of time.

"The caregiver support group has allowed me to share my inner feelings with others who feel the same way. This group has given me the strength to go on every day."
